Parents of boy slain in Israel file suit

By Matt O'Connor
TRIBUNE STAFF WRITER

Bridgeview man's alleged terrorist ties cited

The parents of a 17-year-old boy who was killed in 1996 in Israel in an alleged attack by Hamas terrorists have filed a $201 million federal lawsuit in Chicago against what they label Hamas-front organizations in the United States that allegedly financed the attack.

Among the defendants is Mohammad Salah, a naturalized U.S. citizen who lives in suburban Bridgeview and is accused in a pending Justice Department lawsuit of financing terrorist activities by Hamas, the militant Islamic group.

Stanley and Joyce Bolm, whose son David, a student in Israel, was gunned down as he stood at a bus stop in the West Bank, brought the unusual legal action under the federal Antiterrorism Act.

The parents were legal residents of New York at the time of the slaying and now live in Jerusalem.

The lawsuit, filed Friday in U.S. District Court here, seeks multi-million-dollar damages from Salah as well as the Quranic Literacy Institute, based in Oak Lawn, and several other Islamic and Muslim groups around the country.

The Quranic Literacy Institute was also named in the Justice Department suit, filed in 1998 in federal court in Chicago.

Lawyers for the institute have said in the past that it translates and publishes sacred Islamic texts and other scholarly research.

But the Bolms' lawsuit as well as the Justice Department's alleges that the Quranic Literacy Institute raises and launders money for Hamas.

Salah was in prison in Israel at the time of Bolm's slaying after pleading guilty to a charge of illegally channeling funds to the Hamas organization. He was freed in late 1997 and returned to the Chicago area after serving nearly five years.

In an interview in 1998, Salah denied ever supporting Hamas and said he was tortured into con-exhaustion at the scene. One was transported to University of Chicago Hospital, where he was in fair condition with a leg injury, Knight said.

All of the building's 18 units were destroyed, Knight said.

fessing to the charges in Israel.

Neither Salah nor the Quranic Literacy Institute has been criminally charged with wrongdoing, though it has been an open secret in courtroom discussions in the Justice Department lawsuit that a federal grand jury has been investigating whether they have financially supported Hamas terrorist activities.

Attorneys for Salah and the Quranic Literacy Institute could not be reached for comment on the allegations in the Boims' lawsuit.

The lawsuit alleges that Hamas seeks to undermine the Middle East peace process through violent attacks against civilians. The suit accuses Salah of organizing military fundraising in the U.S. for Hamas.

The FBI has alleged that Salah used the Quranic Literacy Institute to channel hundreds of thousands of dollars to Hamas operatives outside the United States between 1991 and 1993.

According to the Boims' lawsuit, Hamas operatives in the West Bank used money wired from the United States to buy weapons and carry out terrorist attacks, including the one on their son.

According to the suit, two known members of Hamas' military wing were arrested by Palestinian authorities for Boim's slaying. One was released and died in a 1997 suicide bombing that killed five civilians in Jerusalem, according to the suit. The other suspect was convicted of taking part in the slaying and was sentenced in 1998 to 10 years of hard labor in prison.

In addition to seeking $200 million in damages, the parents want to lay claim to $1.4 million in cash and property seized by federal authorities from Salah and the Quranic Literacy Institute in 1998.

Treatment

on in the brain without hurting it."

Research in areas such as genetic decoding and brain mapping has improved the understanding of how the brain works.

With brain scans, psychiatrists are able to see the beneficial effects of different therapies. And while most medications are the result of trial and error and clinical observation, future medications will be specifically developed using new genetic information to elicit particular responses in the brain. So, for example, a new drug may inactivate portions of a specific gene associated with schizophrenia to prevent the illness' progression.

"A number of studies really made a loud and clear signal that a combination of psychotherapy with medication is very effective in patients," said Dr. Jan Fawcett, chair of the department of psychiatry at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center.

One such study, said Fawcett, examined patients with chronic major depression and compared the effectiveness of antidepressant medication and cognitive therapy modification. The patients that got both treatments did twice as well as the groups that just had one therapy.

"Those kind of studies that pit one treatment against another to see what works better... made people see you can't talk about either/or," Fawcett said. "There are things you can't do for people with medication that you can with psychotherapy... and vice versa."

One major area of psychiatric research is identifying differences in ethnic groups to better tailor treatments.

For example, a particular enzyme is involved in metabolizing many older-generation antidepressant medications. But about 30 percent of African
